TEXT: "A goodly cedar, and under it shall disell all four of every wing,"-Exchiel xvii., 23.

kiel xvii., 23.

The cedar of Lebanon is a royal tree. It stands six thou and feest above the level of the sea. A missionary counted the concentric circles and found one tree thirty-five hundred years old—Lag rooted, broad branches, all the year in luxuriant foliage. The same branches that bent in the hurricane that David saw sweeping over Lebanon, roc. to-day over the head of the American traveler. This monarch of the forest, with its leafy fingers, pucks the honors of a thousand years and sprinkles them upon its own uplitted brow, as though some great halleing he of heaven had been planted upon Lebanon and it were rising up with all its long armed strength to take hold of the hills where it came.

Oa, what a fine place for birds to nest in!

hills wheree it came.

Oh, what a fine p are for birds to nest in!
In hot days they come to ther—the eagle,
the dove, the swallow, the sourrow and the raven. There is to many of us a complete fascination in the structure and habits of birds. They seem not more of earth than heaven—very vaciliating between the two

No worder that Audubon, with his gun, tramped through all of the American forests in search of new specimens. Geologists have spent years in fluding the track of a bird's claw in the new red sandstone. There is enough of God's architecture in a single's bill or a grouse's foot to confound all the universities. Musicians have, with cleft and bors tried to cate in the sound of the nightingale and robin. Among the first toings that a child notices is a swallow at the eaves, and grandfather goes out with a handful of crumbs to feed the snow birds.

The Bible is full of contitological allusions. The birds of the Bible are not deal and stuffed, like those of the museum, but living birds, with fluttering wings and planage. "Behold the fowls of the sir," says Christ. "Though thou exait thyself as the eagle, and though thou exist thyself as the eagle, and though thou set thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thes down," exclaims Obadiah. "Gavest Thou the goodly wings unto the peacees?" says Job. David describes his desolistion by saying, "I am like a pelican of the wilderness; I am like an owl of the desert; I wated and am as a sparrow alone upon the housetop." "Yea, the stock in the heaven knoweth her appointed time; and the turble, and the crana, and the swallow observe the time of their coming; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord"—so says Jeremiab.

Ezekiel in my text intimates that Christ is the cedar, and the people from all quarters are the birds that lodge among the branches. "It shall be a goody exist, and under it shall devel all fow of every wing." As in Ezekiel's time, so now—Christ is a goody cedar, and to film are flying all kinds of people—roung and old, rich and poor, men high souring as the eagle, those fires as the raven, and those gentle as the dove. "All fow of every wing."

First, the young may come. Of the eighteen hundred and ninety-two years that

"All fowl of every wing"

First, the young may come. Of the eighteen hundred and inhely-two years that have passed since Christ came, about sixtoen hundred have been wasted by the good in misdirected effocts. Until Robert Raikes came there was no organized effort for saving the young. We spend all our strength surving to bend old trees, when a little presway would have been sufficient for the saper. We let men go down to the very botfrod, of an before we try to lift them up. It.

There two opposite destinies. It you are going electheaven, you had better take the straightenfad, and not try to go to Boston by way of raise worleans. What is to be the history of this multitade of young people around me today? I will take you by the hand and show you a glorious sunrise. I will not white about this thing, nor groun about it, but come, young men and mailens, Jesus wants you. His hand is low-His youca is music, His smile is heaven. I went through the beaviest showstorm I have ever known to see a dying girl. Her check on the pillow was white as the show on the casement. Her large, round eye had not lost any of its luster. Loved ones stood all around the bed trying to hold her back. Her mother could not give her up, and of will be cursed to the bone for your ingratitode and unkindness?

Oh, how many dear old folks Jesus has put to sleep! How sweetly He has close!
Indire yeas! How gently folded their arms!
How He has put His hand on their silent
hearts and said: "Hest now, tiroi pilgrim,
It is all over. The tears will never start blessoms of the tree of life. I never feel sorry for a Christian old man. Why feel sorry for those upon whom his glories of the eternal world are about to burst! They are going to the goally cedar. Though their wines are heavy with age, God shall remay their strength like the eagle, and they shall make their uses in the cedar. "All reasw their strength like the eagle, and they shall make their use in the celar. "All food of every wing."

Arein the very bad, the outrogeously statu, may come. Men talk of the grace of Gel as though it were so many yards long and so many yards deep. People point to the dying thief as an encouragement to the samer. How much better it would be to point to our own case and say, "If Go I cave it is He can save unybody." There may be those here who never had one carnest wor I said to them about their wais. Consider may as putting my hand on your shoulier and looking in your eye. God has been good to you. You ask, "How do you know that? He has been very hard on me." "Then you have a home. Have you ever thrushed God for your confideren? Where did you come from?" "Hone." "Then you have a home. Have you ever thrushed God for your children? "Yes." "Have you ever thrushed God for your children? Who keeps them safe? Were you ever slee?" "Yes." "Who made you well? Have you been feed every day? Who feeds you? Put your hand or your pulse. Who makes it throb! Listen to the respiration of your imags. Who heips you to breathe? Have you a Bible in the house, spreading baces you the future life? Who gave you that Bible?"

Oh, it has been a story of goodness and mercy all the way through. You have been one of God's pat children. Who fornilst you and caressel you and love dy you? And when you went astray and wanted to come beek, did Heever refuse? I know of a father who, after his son came back the fourth time, and, "No.; I forgave you three times, but I will never forgive you again." And the son went off and died. But Gol takes back His children the thousandin time as cheerfully as the first. As easily as with my hundkerchief! strike the dust off a boor. Gol will wise out all your size.

Again, at the dying who has been the situate to destroy one. There was a besulful nest in the next street. Lovingly the pirents brooked over it. There were two or three little robins in the next. The scarlec fever turns it is hands into the next, the branches of the cenar toss on the whole and changer. When a storm comes, you can see the birds flying to the woods. See the storm of death somes down, let us fly to the goodly cedar.

Of what great varieties heaven will be made up. There come men who once were hard and cruel and desperate in wickedness, yet now, soft and changed by graze, they come into glory, "All fewl of every wing." And here they come, the children who were reared in loving home circles flocking through the gates of life, "All fowl of every wing." These are white and came from northern homes; these were black and ascended from couthern plantations: these were copper colored and went up from Indian reservations—"All fowl of every wing." So God gathers them up. It is astonishing how easy it is for a good saul to enter heaven.

A prominent business man in Philadelphia went home one afternoon, lay down on the lounge and said: "It is time for me to go." He was very age!. His daughter said to him, "Are you seld?" He said: "No; but it is time for me to go. Have John put it in two of the moraing papers, that my friends may know that I am gone. Good-by," and as quick as that God had taken him. It is easy to go when the time comes. There are no ropes thrown out to pull us assore; there are no laiders let down to pull us up. Christ comes and takes us by the hand and says, "You have had enough of this; come up higher." Do you hart a flly when you pluck it? Is there any ruleness wenn Jesus touches the cheek, and the red rose of health whitens into the lily of immoral purity and glaviness?

When autumned gath, then there will be thousands of birds gathering in the tree at the corner of the field, just before departing to warmer climps, and they will call and sing until the branches drop with the melody. There is a better clima for us, and by and by we shall be gone. If all this andience is saved, as I hope they will be, I see them entering into life. Some have heal it easy, some were brilliant, some were dull. So me were rocked by pious parentage, oth

Behold the saints, beloved of God. Washed are their robes in Jesus's blood. Brighter than angels, lof they shine. Their giories splended and sublime.

Through tribulation great they came: They have the cross and scorned the shame; Now, in the heavenly temple best; With 63d they dwelf, on Him they rest.

While everlasting angels roll Eterial love shall test their simi, and scenes of blies, forever new Rise in succession to their view.
